Synopsis:

In the small town of Shirley, Vermont, five strangers gather in a dance studio to embark on a unique journey together in a creative drama class for adults. Taught by Marty, their free-spirited and supportive leader, the group move through a series of acting exercises, ranging from the heartbreaking to the ridiculous. In this one small room, through these few seemingly trivial games, quiet wars are waged, emotional wounds are nursed, and healing is finally, slowly, able to begin.

Roles:

Marty (Martha) – 55, teacher of the new adult drama class and co-executive director of the community center; wants to create a safe space for her students

James – 60, Marty's husband; bold, adventurous, caring; a father and army brat; has lived a full life, still in search of more

Theresa – 35, new to Vermont; former actor in New York; earnest, hopeful, playful, and passionate

Schultz – 48, recently divorced; a carpenter and artist; sweet, awkward

Lauren – 16, somewhat reserved junior in highschool; wants to be an actor

NTC welcomes artists of all races/ethnicities, abilities, ages, and gender identities to audition. We look forward to meeting you!
